Weather Clues for the Week of _____ to _____

Step One: Get your eye on the sky

Freddy hops outside to check the weather first thing each morning and so can you. Look or go outside and look for clues in the sky.

Clouds: Look up and notice what type of cloud is in the sky. Cumulus? Stratus? Cirrus? Cumulonimbus?

TYPES OF CLOUDS

Step Two:

Freddy uses the tools in his weather station to check for more clues. You can find these clues with your weather station tools.

Precipitation: Check your rain gauge for signs of rain, snow, sleet, or hail.

Barometric Pressure: Check your barometer for signs of high or low pressure systems. In the morning, record your findings under the AM space. In the evening, record your findings under the PM space.

Wind Vane: Which way is the wind blowing? Go outside and see if the winds are northerly, southerly, easterly, or westerly.

Step Three:

Freddy likes to watch the weather reports on the Frog News Network. You can ask an adult to help you tune into a local weather station, radio show, or online weather center.

Put all your clues together and describe what the weather will be like each day.
